TORONTO, Nov. 4.—Prolests against the planned U.S. nuclear test on Amchika Island swept across Canada yesterday. They ranged from open-air demonstrations, which blocked border crossings and jammed Canadian cities traffic, to a charge by the nation's external affairs minister that the United States might be breaking maritime law in connection with the explosion scheduled for Saturday.

The minister, Mitchell Sharp, said he believed that see laws may be violated by the U.S. action barring vessels from a 50mile control zone around Am-chitks, an island in Alaska's Alcutian archipelago. But Mr. Sharp said that Canada bad no plans to lodge a formal protest because it had already challenged the test and because "you can't protest (on the basis of a theo-

Environmentalists Going to U.S. High Court

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—In what was described by Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield as "the last hope" of blocking the 'dangerous outrage" of the Amchitks atomic test, environmen-talist groups were making final preparations today to seek a Supreme Court injunction.

Turned down yesterday by a three-member U.S. Court of Appeals, which refused for the second time to hear the environmentalists' case for halting the iest, the groups said that they still had hopes of convincing the Supreme Court of the explosion's

The seven conservationist organizations say the blast, schedul-ed for 2200 GMT Saturday, may set off earthquakes and tidal waves, spring radioactive waste into the air and kill marine life in the northern Pacific Ocean.

They say that the Nixon administration suppressed evidence about the environmental dangers by keeping secret some adverse studies and withholding government panels' conclusions from a bublic statement, required by law, on potential hazards.

In that connection, they cite a secret report written by Presi-dent Nixon's chief adviser on the environment, Russell E. Train, in December of last year. They contend that report said the Amchitica explosion could trigger a chain reaction of earthquakes all across the Pacific. --

They wear business suits instead of robes or armor, and their job is purely ceremonial, overseeing local elections and escorting indges in and out of courtrooms.

2 GIs Die in Vietnam War; Casualty Lists Questioned

By Iver Peterson SAIGON, Nov. 4 (NYT).—The U.S. Command today announced that two Americans died in action during the week ending last Saturday, the lowest one-week combat-death figure tor American troops in South Vietnam since 1965, However, a command spokesman conceded that more American troops might have died in fighting during those seven days. He said their deaths were not "processed" through the reporting system at the Pentagon.

The spokesman conceded, in response to questions, that the low casualty figure was in effect "a bookkeeping figure," because the command reported previously that four American soldiers were killed by enemy fire in Long Khanh Province last Saturday. The questioning about the accuracy of the command casualty reporting system arose at the daily command briefing today because Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird announced on his

167-Day Flight Seen As Almost Flawless

PASADENA, Calif., Nov. 4 (UPI) -- America's Mariner-9 television probe will attempt an unprecedented orbit around Mars Saturday, a space official said to-

The spacecraft is scheduled to end its 167-day journey by swing-ing into an 800 to 10,700 milehigh path that will give its twin cameras and other instruments an unmatched view of Mars for at least three months.

"If all goes well, we anticipate a veritable information explosion about the Mars terrain, climate and atmosphere, even its two tiny moons," Robert H. Steinbacher, a Mariner-9 project scientist, said. Almost Flawless

The $65 million, 2.200-pound satellite was reported working almost flawlessly as it zeroed in on the mysterious red planet, but project officials are keeping their fingers crossed. Four of five previous probes encountered trouble when they approached Mariner-9's planned orbit will take it around Mars twice a day and enable its cameras to map about 70 percent of the craterscarred surface in three months. In addition, Mariner-9 will be able to examine specific spots on Mars every 17 days to see if there have been changes.

One of the spacecraft's cameras is equipped with a telescopic lens that will pick out objects the size of a football field on Mars. The other is a wide-angle camera that will cover broader areas.

In addition to the cameras, Mariner-9 carries sensors to measure the density, composition and temperatures of Mars's thin atmosphere and tell scientists something about the chemical makeup of the Martian surface.

Two Soviet probes, Mars-2 and Mars-3, are expected to reach the planet at about the same time as Mariner-9.

U.S. scientists had also planned for a twin shot at Mars at this time. However, Mariner-9'a com-panion vehicle, Mariner-8 exploded shortly after liftoff last May.

Sen. Charles Percy, R., Ill., said that the German government would derive the ultimate benefits from the new heating systems if the U.S. troop level was reduced. Sen. Chile Moves To Cut Imports As Crisis Looms SANTIAGO, Chile, Nov. 4 (AP).

—President Salvadore Allende
Gossens has ordered Chile's imports cut to the barest essentials in a move to stave off a crisis in foreign currency reserves,

To implement his decision, Chile's central bank has demanded a 10,000 percent prior deposit charge on more than threefourths of the capital and consummer goods the country buys abroad, making the cost of these imports prohibitive.

Knowledgeable sources estimated that the central bank's forcien currency reserves have dropped from about $400 million to probably less than $175 million in the one year Mr. Allende's coalition administration has been in power.

The restriction, announced yes-terday, as explained by an importer, means that a company that wants to import $500 worth of spare parts to keep its machinery going must deposit $50,000 with the central bank when recuesting an import permit.

above $1 billion. Inflation and rising costs have 70 well above the cost of its sister carrier, the Eisenhower, which is expected to cost $616 million. Mr. Chafee conceded that $1 billion is a staggering amount of money to pay for any single weapons complex. But he argued that the aircraft carrier had already proved itself a vital projection of national power in the past and would become even more important as foreign land bases for U.S. forces decline as a result of America's policy of presenting a low military profile in the world, Without going into whether the Navy needs 15 attack aircraft carriers for the indefinite future, Mr. Chafee said that the obvious problem was that the U.S. carrier fleet was creakingly old and needed modernization.

"I think the President was greatly impressed with what carriers could do in the Mediterra-nean," Mr. Chaice said in referring to the political leverage they provided during the Middle East crisis last fall. "Everybody who was associated with the flap thought it was pretty nice to have a few carriers around."

It is still too early to tell whether President Nixon and his budget advisers will go along with the Pentagon on the new carrier. But Senate critics plan to challenge the carrier again, arguing that it is too much money for a ship that could be disabled by a ship-to-chip missile in a conventional war or an H-bomb in a nuclear war. The Senate opponents of the aircraft carrier already have held up the CVA-70 two years.

Peace Move By Ukrainians

Bishops, Slipyi Ask Pontiff for Meeting

VATICAN CITY, Nov. 4 (AP) .--Ukrainian bishops holding a synod in defiance of a Vatican prohibition have asked for an audience with Pope Paul VI to reconcile differences, a Vatican source said

The source indicated that he did not know whether the Pope would now see Josef Cardinal Slipyl, the Ukrainian leader, or any other Ukrainian bishop.

The source also said that the Pontiff was deeply hurt by Cardinal Slipyr's speech to the Synod of Bishops two weeks ago. The 79year-old Ukrainian prelate attacked papal diplomacy aimed at promoting a detente with Moscow. He accused the Vatican of "putting aside" Ukrainian bishops and priests imprisoned in Soviet Rusthrown into confusion today over a vote on whether married men should become priests.

Synod of Bishops Confused Toward Pope Over Clerical Celibacy Vote

More than 200 prelates were confronted with a flat "yes" or "no" choice on a motion so phrased that passage could completely close the door to the idea. The confusion touched off the liveliest debate since the synod opened on Sept. 30.

Synod officials decided to postpone the vote until tomorrow night.

They said that various amendments to the motion proposed earlier by the bishops would be distributed to delegates tomorrow for their information. There was no question, they said, of voting on anything except the

The motion was a revised version of one rejected Tuesday during a first vote on a 29-page Latin language document on the priesthood, one of two themes of the synod.

The original motion read:

At the session, President Georges Pempidou decided to name soon a single national official to he responsible for curbing noise from machines such as motorcycles, jackhammers and airplanes. The official has been dubbed "Monsieur Silence."

Explaining his plans, Mr. Pompidon said that there are already plenty of anti-noise laws, hut enforcement is insufficient. His program includes government training of "noise police"-regular officers and industrial inspec-

The order to Paris police promulgated today also directs them to increase checks on pollution sources other than cars with faulty exhaust control. Among their targets will be buildingconstruction projects and existing edifices which emit excessive smoke, dirt and din.

When they find a car with a faulty exhaust system, they can impound its registration papers and issue a provisional document good only for a trip to a garage. The vehicle will have to pass an official examination before the registration papers are returned-and the owner will have to pay a fine as well. If the vehicle does not pass the test, it will be impounded.

Parisians will be able to complain about pollution to a special new office, as well as to police.

The Senegalese leader was also quoted as saying he felt a personal and spiritual link for Judatem and Zionism, in which he caw a movement parallel to the liberation movement of the black African peoples.

Similar Disenssions

Mr. Senghor, whose mission will fly to Cairo tomorrow for similar discussions with Egyptian President Anwar Sadat, said he and some other members of the mission would probably return to Jerusalem Nov. 15 for a second round of talks.

The mission is due to report in Dakar next week to the subcom-mittee of 10 African heads of ctute delegated by the Organiza-tion of African Unity to inves-tigate the Middle East crisis.

The mission, which held two working sessions with Premier Golda Meir and Foreign Minister Abba Eban yesterday, held abthird meeting this afternoon, at which Defense Minister Moshe Dayan outlined Israel's security requirements for a settlement with the Arabs.

As Direct as Possible

At a recention in the Knesset last night Mr. Senghor told reporters he believed in a dialogue between Israel and the Arabs, despite the difficulties which might be involved, and that he favored as direct a dialogue as

But, at the same time, he said he could equally understand the reluctance of Egypt and other Arab countries to enter into such a dislogue, since they had been defeated by Israel in the 1967

At the same time, drastic cuts in public spending, continued price controls and a dividends freeze were proposed in one of Israel's most severe austerity budgets, now under review by the cabinet, Finance Ministry sources said tonight

The proposals, contained in Finance Minister Finhas Sapir's draft budget for 1972-73, are designed to stem the continuing deterioration in the country's economy as evidenced by growing inflation, an increasing balance of payments deficit and a mounting foreign debt.

Storms Out of Bengal

center in a world of storms. For the second year a great wind has stirred the waves of the Bay of Bengal and left destruction and many dead-this time in India's Orissawhile the aftermath of flood and political turmoil still ravages East Pakistan. And it is still a question whether the homan storm in Bengal, with its infinite complexity, can be prevented from spreading throughout the Aslan sub-continent-and, indeed, from reaching around the globe.

For the immediate supporters of Bangla Desh, the issues can be portrayed in simple, nationalist terms. They believe-and President Yahya Khan does not dispute themthat East Pakistan has been short-changed by the West. They argue that the delays and errors of the assistance program after the cyclone last year were an example of this; that the refusal of West Pakistan to recognize the political rights of East Pakistan, to the point of a bloody suppression of those who asserted their rights, made continued union impossible. So they fight for the nation of Bangla Desh.

And India sympathizes with this movement. The Indian government has a good argument ior its position: It is burdened beyond bearing with millions of refugees from East Pakistan-refugees who create a major economic crisis, as well as a serious political crisis among India's own turbulent Bengalis. More, the fact that so many of the refugees are non-Moslems, singled out for especially stern treatment by the Pakistanis, adds to the religious tensions of a land which already has too many such problems. So India demands a political solution in East Pakistan which will permit the Bengal, the land and the bay, is a storm refugees to go back to their own territories -and is there any solution short of independence which will fill that bill?

But there are many Indians who have always regarded the partition of India as a crime against the nation, and who are as interested in weakening Pakistan as in seeking justico for East Pakistan-just as there are many Pakistanis who are more concerned with maintaining at least a pretense of sovereignty over the East, rather than meeting the legitimate grievances of the East Pakistanis.

That Bangla Desh guerrilias are based in India seems indisputable; that they have the countenance of the Indian government is highly probable. Out of this flows the massing of troops along the borders and the daily incidents that could be a prelude Moreover, behind India stands the Soviet Union: hehind Pakistan, China, It is doubtful whether either great power would wish to clash over this issue, with its complicated background and illimitable possibilities for destruction. But the subcontinent is to Asia as the Balkans were to Europe-and events could escape control in this instance as they did in the Balkans.

The United States has relatively little influence in this case. By refusing to align with either party wholly, it has more or less alienated both. Yet Mrs. Gandhi is in Washington, and doubtless Mr. Nixon will do what he can to encourage an accommodation. And, quite possibly, his initiatives toward Peking and Moscow may bring dividends in enhancing this encouragement -dividends for the many millions of Indians and Pakistanis whose fate hangs on so many Both Nobel laureates were originally Central Europeans who began their scientific careers in Germany, and who were then forced to flee when Hitler came to power. Like many others, Dr. Gabor went to Britain and Dr. Herzberg settled in Canada, while an even larger number of these displaced scientists followed Albert Einstein to the United States.

The several thousand men and women involved in this vast scientific exodus have long since richly repaid the nations which gave them sanctuary. International Opinion

Nixon's Errors

Nixon has committed errors: His commercial and financial policies, for example, do not coincide with his declared objectives in international relations; the blow bludgeoned on Europe and Japan by Mr. Connally contrasts with the smiles lavished on Peking. The protectionism from which Nixon derived so much domestic support constituted a sure way to isolationism. He should have guessed that after opening such a breach be was going to see a torrent of nationalist passion rush through it.

Can the world do without America? It. could do so if the United States had not molded it according to its own criteria. A U.S. historian writes that the United States passes through periodical fits of isolationism, which might mean that the present one is as temporary as the others.

But what will the world of peace and negotiation promised by Nixon be worth if trade war, impoverishment and unemployment prevail? This is asking the Americans a question which they do not want to hear today, because they have lost interest in foreigners. It is to be hoped that a salutary start will free them from a sort of "Poujadisme" from which they would suffer more

France and Germany

Herr Brandt used his remarkable interview on French television to repeat his previous proposals to President Pompidon for an early man-to-man meeting-clearly in the hope of reducing what is becoming the worst rift in the 1963 Franco-German friendship treaty.

As he rightly sees, relations with Russia and the whole question of European security are closely bound up with the dollar crisis. While taking more risks than we consider prudent in his Ostpolitik, he has always insisted that its essential basis and source of strength must be Western European unity within a NATO in which America continues to play her full part.

The U.S. Elections

For Mr. Nixon to regard the results as encouraging, he must come to the conclusion that Cleveland and Philadelphia, where the appeal to law and order decided the day. are most typical of the electoral situation throughout the country as he will find it in 1972. He must also believe that Republicans will monopolize the right-wing platform.

The prospect, however, is far from cortain. Even if it were, Democratic candidates are perfectly capable of making their own use of it. though if that is to be their tactics, clearly Mr. Muskie rather than Mr. McGovern must be their man.

Nor do the mayoral elections throw light on what is likely to be a major inflnence in the presidential stakes-unemployment, inflation and the prospects for the economy. Either way the fact is that Mr. Nixon cannot afford to be associated with economic failure. The year 1972 has to be "a very good year." [This week's] voting offers no guidance on that electoral prospect.

PARIS.—It is unusual that a commentator on foreign affairs can find a pleasant or encouraging subject to write about. This is especially true with respect to the UN, whose latest gyrations over which China means what, and to whom, have proven a rather traumatic experience to certain capitals, including Wash-ington. Nevertheless, an exception to this gloomy rule arises with respect to Unesco, the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization, which celebrated its 25th birthday yes-

This statistic more than encompasses the population increase that exploded during that period. In other words, the literacy growth rate exceeds the population growth rate, which is a formidable achievement since the annual majority of births occurs most of all in backward areas.

Projects in Africa

As part of this program, Unesco has fostered 50 teacher-training projects in Africa, Asia and Latin America and by the start of this year those projects had trained approximately 64,000 teachers. Likewise, over the past 21 years. more than 300,000 Arab refugee children from Palestinian families have been educated under Unesco's supervision.

American Aid

No wonder Nixon is so mad at the Senate! Since the U.S. foreign aid program has over the last few years really become an aid program to U.S. industry in the form of Washington-paid foreign orders, the Senate'e cutback of foreign aid will, in fact, weaken the boost to the economy intended by the Nixon package of August 15 by $2.9 billion. Wall Street anderstood If it is doing so unwittingly, as it seems, it shows by what level of intelligence the U.S. electorate is represented. If it is doing so purposely to embarrass that strangest of all U.S. administrations, neither Republican nor Democratic, it is showing the electorate that the foundations of the Founding Fathers do not work any more when the state handles everything. But then the electorate does not know what it is all about anyhow.

The son of the attractive comedienne Jacqueline Porel, and the great-grandson of the great Réjane, he has inherited the family gift, but deserves a better assignment, perhaps the part of the peasant lad in Vadja's play. Mrs. Igor Stravinsky: Artist in Her Own Right

NEW YORK, NOV. 4 (NYT).— an English In the Paris of the Rosring Twenties, when Russian émigrés drove taxicabs or worked as scamstresses amid a frenzied arlistic and literary life, one of the eclebrated romances that sprang from the emigré colony was that of Igor Stravinsky and Vera de Bosset, a costume de-signer for Stravinsky's friend and patron, Bergel Diaghiler.

Since their marriage in the United States in 1940, Vera Stravinsky has—as Virgina Woolf re-marked of Sam Coleridge—lived in the light of her husband's sunset. While his compositions revolutionized music, she pursued a less radical course, quietly turning from costume designing to painting such romantic sub-jects as flowers, seashells and

When Stravinsky's health beban to fail early in 1963, his wife set aside brush and needlepoint to devote herself completely to

Now, seven months after his death here at the ago of 88, Mrs. Stravinsky, more than 20 years his junior, is indomitably determined to refushion her life, not merely as the eustedian of his musical legacy but also as a creative being in her own right.

Encouraged by her friend Sonya Kroyt, an art dealer and the widow of Boris Kroyt, vio-list of the Budapest Quartet, she has assembled 40 of her paintings for an exhibition that opens today at the Gallery of the Chelses National Bank here, appropriately only four blocks away from Carnegie Hall.

In addition, she is working on her memoirs, completing a pic-ture biography of Stravinsky for an English publisher and supervising television programs on the composer's life with the help of Robert Craft, the conductor.

"I began to write a diary some years before I left Russia after the revolution," she said in a rare interview yesterday at her spaelous apartment overlooking Central Park.

The composer's widow, a red-dish-haired woman with a winning smile and the big blue eyes one according with painted Russian peasant dolls, took time off from setting up her show to reminisce about the past and talk about the future.

Taking tea with Mr. Craft and Lillian Libman, who was Stra-vinsky's personal manager, is to savor not only the humor and gossip of the worlds of music and art, but also the irate reaction of a housewife to such mundane problems as the Internal Revenue

"Do you realize," Mrs. Stra-vinsky said indignantly, a dark from crossing her usually genial face, "that because somebody assessed my husband's archives to be worth $3.5 million, the government is trying to tax me for $500,800? Nobady seems to have the money these days to but the archives, so how will I get the money to par for the taxes?"

Her round face relaxed when she showed a visitor a silverframed photograph on a small table showing Mrs. Stravinsky foodly peering over the shoulder of her husband, a dapper figure in a broad-rimmed feit hat looking very much like Sir Cedric Hardwicke.

"That was taken in Cambridge on March 9, 1940, the day we got married-Stravinsky was lecturing at Harvard," she said gently.

From Massachusetts, the couple moved to Hollywood into the midst of an enclave of distinguished European refugees, among them Thomas Mann, Max Reinhardt, Julian Huxley, Franz Werfel and Alma Mahler. Other celebrated neighbors were Artur Rubinstein, Jascha Helfetz ("He had too many parties") and Edward G. Robinson, who interrupted his duties in the Navy to sponsor the Stravinskys in obtaining their naturalization

Performances

For the last few weeks, Mrs. Stravinsky and Mr. Craft, a 45year-old musician who has for 20 years dedicated himself to being Stravinsky's alter ego, have been supervising a 90-minute television program of Stravinsky's work to be shown or television on Nov. 22. She also closely follows performances of the late composer's music, and last Sunday, for example, she sent congratulations to Alexander Schneider, who conducted a chamber orchestra, and Cathy Berberian, the mezzo-soprano, in a glowing all-Stravinsky program at the New School At the end of the interview, Mrs. Stravinsky spoke of her husband's last days in the apart-ment, a 14-room cooperative they acquired just three mouths be fore his death.

"We spent the last evenings listening to music in the living room," sho recalled, speaking softly. "He followed every pleas with the scoro and had his usual comments about the performances—some very good, some not so good."

In our 747, the man in front won't use your legroom as his lúggage rack.

We've given him (and you) a special overhead locker.\
It takes care of coats, hats, parcels, bulging bags and bulky briefcases.

So there's absolutely no reason why he should want to go stuffing things under seats.

If he insists, he'll have to put them in his own legroom. A neat little bar stops him from using yours.

It's all part of BOAC's aim to make you more comfortable in our 747 than in any other aircraft in the sky.

The same aim inspired us to give you an extra inch of room for your knees. And an extra two inches of room for your hips.

Unlike some airlines, you see, we're not just offering you a plane with more seats than ever before.

We're offering you a plane with more room than ever before.

All the 747 needed was BOAC service.

Japanese Firms Seek U.S. Plants

Nusan Motor Co. says it is studying the possability of partly assembling small tracks in the United Stales. The company said its U.S. subsidary is attempting to find a U.S. company that would be able to manufacture rear bodies and install them on Nissin one-lon truck chassis imported from Japan. A spokesnum said the plan armed at minimizing import duty payments. Meanwhile, Tokyo Shibaura Electric Co. (Toshiba) said it plans to bave black and white television sets made in the United States. The firm said its wholly-owned importer-distributor, Toshiba America luc., is negatiating with Philer Pord Corp. for Phileo to make 19-inch sets for sale at the rate of nearly 10,000 units a month on the U.S. market under the Japanese brand name. Toshiba said the plan is designed to sidestep the dumping charges made in the United States against Japanese products, and to avoid the impact of the new United States economic pois-

U.S. on Car-Buying Splurge

Americans bought more than one million new cars in October—the largest one-month buying splurge in the industry's history. Exuberant auto executives gave most of the credit for the sales been to the Nixon administration's new economic policy, which rolled back a price in-crease on new models, asked Congress to reperf the 7 percent excise tan on cars and added a 10 percent import surcharge to the price o' imported vehicles. Although cautious about the future effects of Phase I, most auto executives believe that the sales boom will not fizzle out once the wage-price freeze ends Nor. 13 and erest if prices are increased.

U.S. Index Of Wholesale Prices Drops

By Franck C. Porter

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4 (WP). -The second straight monthly decline in the government's wholesale price index was widely cifed loday as evidence that the administration's wage-price sla-bilization program is taking hold. Of 15 major commodity groups, only two rose during October.

And government officials had quick explanation for both of these. Farm products, which rose 0.7 percent for the month, are not subject to the freeze. A 1 percent increase in transportation equipment largely reflected the phaseout of discounts for 1971 model new cars as thr market switched to new models in October, analysis explained. The Bureau of Labor Statistics announced that its wholesale price index slipped from 1145 perrent of the 1967 average in September to 114.4 ;ast month. The index now stands 3.1 per-cent above October, 1970, the smallest year-to-year gain since last spring. In the last three montos the index has risen at a seasonally-adjusted annual rate of onir 1.7 perernt. The index had dropped 0.3 percent in September after nine straight monthly increases. Thr two-mouth decline was the first in nine years. After adjustment for seasonal factors, the index rose 0.1 percent. It had declined 0.4 percent on this basis the month before. The closely-watched industrial commodity component - which many economists consider the most accurate measure of lnflationary pressure—beld sten " at 115 although it derlined 0," percent after seasonal adjust ntthe largest such drop in more than 10 years.

Major Banks In U.S. Cut Prime Rate

Key Lending Rate Back To 51 2 Percent Level

NEW YORK, Nov. 4 (IHT) --The key lending rate for big husiness fell lodar for the second time within two werks.

Chase Manhattan Bank kicked off today's quarter point out in the prime rate and was quickly followed by its major competitors -Bank of America, Morgan Guaranty, Chemical Bank, Manufacturers Hanover. Continental Illinois, Bank of New York, Marine Midland and a host of Others around the country.

The rais, at 5 i 2 percent, is now back to where it was last MOTURE. At the same time, a drop in consumer borrowing rates was aunounced. Chase said it was cutting raiss for new installment loans of up to $5,000, effective tomorrow. Rejuztions of slightly more than I percent in the annual percentage rate will apply to all personal suito, small business and home improvement loans of up to 36 months. Just two weeks ago, on Oct. 20, Morgan Guaranty initiated & quarter-poun cut in the prime mue to 5 0 4 percent. The next day, First National City Bank established a "floating" prime rate—the charge on loans to the most creditworthy corporations and, in effect, the minimum commercial banking lruding rate. Citibank's floating rate is set a: 0.5 percent above the rates on 90-day commercial paper. Ha eighth of a point cut last week probably exerted pressure on today's industry-wide move. However, the industry appears to be achieving what officials have been urging for morr than a year—a more flexible prime rate that moves frequently and quietir. In the past, the relatively infrequent changes in the rate have had a dramatic impact on the slock market prices, for example. Allhough the most recent rut was preceded and followed by a substantial derline in slock prices, during 10 of the 17 reductions in the prime rate since 1945.

Royal Dutch/Shell Profit Declines 6.8%

LONDON, Nov. 4.- Royal Dutch Shell Group announced today a surprise 6.8 percent profit setback for the third quarter. Shell shares immediately plunged 13.6 pence to 133.5 pence on the London Stock Exchange for a total market loss of 280 mililon ($192 million).

Shell said its balance of net income was £82.6 million, down from 592.5 million in the comparable period last year. Sales, however, rose 12.3 percent to £1.805 billion from the previous $1.608 billion.

For the nine-month period, bal-ance of net income - which is calculated after deducting appropriations for additional depreciation from net income-was 5298.7 million, up 8.1 percent from £276.4 million in the same period of 1970.

Nine-months sales were £5.4 billion, up 14.9 percent from $4.7 billion in the first nine months of last year.

Demand Declines The group said that outside North America the rate of growth of demand for oil products, especially fuel oil, has been declining during the year. This was particularly marked in the third quarter, when the total volume of crude oil and oil product sales was 2.4 percent lower than in the third quarter of 1870. "This reduction is mainly the result of a slowing down of growth in industrial activity in most of the major markets where group

HIRE YOUR OWN "JET" 6 seats or Your own Plane companies operate," Shell said. "Prices in general were above those of a year ago, reflecting higher payments to oll-producing countries, but the unit costs of operations during the quarter were adversely affected by the lower volume of sales and continuing inflation. The lower level of industrial growth also continues to depress the chemical results," the statement said. Other Company Reports TOKYO, Nov. 4 (Reuters).— Ishlkawajima-Harima Heavy In-trump, South made an overtrick The right moment to make an attacking opening lead against a suit contract is not easy to find. Such a lead requires good judgment since, if it fails, it may give away a trick. The tendency is to make a passive opening lead against suit contracts. However, it is sometimes right to attack if the opponents reach five clubs or five diamonds: The fact that they have avoided three no-trump may indicate that they are exposed in one suit. Therefore the defenders had better cash some winners right away, hopefully be-NORTH fore discards are possible.

THREE TRAPPED TIGERS

60 THREE Trapped Tigers" is a defient private star remarkable book I doubt a is composed of ler book has been written humor, of a relen funnier book has been written in Spanish since "Don Quixote."-Granted, that is not saying much. Literature in Spanish has not been noted for its humor. Yet this, precisely, is one of the book's strongest points: it has savagely refreshed an often portentously solemn heritage. It is also one of the most inventive. novels that has come out of Latin America, and that is saying a great deal. The inventiveness of Latin-American fiction since Borges is by now (one would hope) fairly widely recognized.

Finally, its humor is fundamentally linguistic—the pun rate often runs at several per page. First published in Spain in 1964, part of its enterprise is to record the kind of Spanish that is spoken in Cuba—the kind I had imagined to be by definition untranslatable. Not only have Donald Gardner and Suzanne Levine proved otherwise. They have, in collaboration with the author, produced one of the best translations I have ever read. Cabrera Infante's English is known to be excellent he has written several film scripts in English. What has been done here is to recreate the novel—an equivalent version that is never quite the original but that is rarely inferior.

Superficially, this is a story of night-life in Havans shortly before the revolution. It takes us into most of the nightclubs. strip-joints, barras and cantinas the city could provide—the ones where after-hour chowcitos were staged, where people sang songs as if they really cared, and where one might have seen a Negro woman improvising a rumba as though she were inventing dance.

Cabrera Infante (who left Cuba several years ago and now : lives in London) has no illusions about what his native island was like under Batista. The book is full of suggestive glimpses of social injustice. "Three Trapped Tigers" is nevertheless an exercise in nostalgia, an attempt, to quote its Carollian epigraph, "to fancy what the flame of a candle looks like after the candle is blown out." The nostalgia is not for the poverty most of the characters were brought up in. It is rather (I think) a nostalgia for the once-familiar bar, the singer, the familiar friend, for an intensely local yet richly varied world. The novel therefore is a celebration of the small things that oblivion or time demolishes.

Friendship is an important ingredient of this book. On one level, "Three Trapped Tigers" is about the efforts of a group of young men to clutch a sort of private solidarity, to make a bond issue falled at the polls. Hep. Edward Koch says 27 major companies are planning to move their headquarters out of Manhaltan. Mayor Lindray seeks a Canadian League Scatball fran-chise to help push the purchase plan of the Yankee Stadium through a reluctant city council. The $200-million sports complex for the Jersey Meadowlands faces several hurdles u.s.de and outside of the courts. In Louisiana things are different. Construction is under way on the Louisiana Superdome in downtown New Orleans, a project that boggles the mind of even the most edifice-minded politician, Its cost alone is a staggering $129.5 million. The debt service comes to $9.5 million annually with the state the guarantor of the 6 percent bond.

New Orleans Makes Room for the Superdome

By William N. Wallace NEW YORK, Nov. 4 (NYT).— In New York, the transportation

The Superdome, which opens late in 1973, is sports-oriented but much of its income will come from non-sports events such as conventions, trade shows and commercial parking. David F. Dixon, the executive director, bas two years to think up what to put in the world's largest building which needs 150 event days to stay solvent. The imagi-native Dixon is having no sidelines. There is baseball. The city lacks a franchise but no matter. The Indians, who do not draw in Cleveland, are seriously con-sidering playing 30 games and 10 exhibitions in the Superdome. Move the slands around and there are 55,596 seats for baseball, 31,000 along the foul lines. There is basketball. The city lacks a pro-franchise but no matter. Dixon prefero the high school and college brand.

"It's Christmas week," he said recently. "We invite 16 high school teams to come over from Houston and play 16 local teams. We run a tournament playing four doubleheaders at once, We'll go to New York and bring down 32 teams from New Jersey, Westchester and Long Island and play eight doubleheaders in the afternoon and follow with two college doubleheaders at night. We'll charge a dollar or a dollar and a half for the high school games. The point is to get

There can also be hockey. track, tennis, rodeos, boxing and so on. The Superdome is so flexible, with seats moving around on artificial turf, that it can hold arenas within an arena eight basketball courts around the parimeter, for example. Despite its size, the Superdome will offer intimacy by means of six huge television screens, 56 feet by 36, suspended from the there is no greater clout than a roof. These screens are to provide close-ups and instant replays in addition to closed-circuit events from afar. Each cercen is about 875 times larger than a home TV set.

"Giant screen TV will be the key to the Superdome; it will be fantastic," said Dixon, using one of his favorite adjectives.

He warmed to his subject. We're going to have a summer festival that will give this city a complete new tourist industry. We'll have a daily Mardi Gras parade, a daily football game, a sports museum, one event right after another for almost anything that involves people. The Louisinna Superdome, the people's place."

Even in Louisiana, there was plenty of opposition and skeptieism. But Dixon had-from the start-the support of the outgoing governor, John McKeithen, a radio football fan, In Louisiana,

In Kansas City, the $85-million Harry S Truman complex will have two adjacent stadiums, one for football and one for baseball. They open next year.

The $60-million Veterans Stadlum opened in Philadelphia this year. So did the $27-million Texas Stadium, for football only, outside Dailas, and the modest but workable Schaefer Stadium in Foxboro. Last year brought forth Riverfront Stadium in Cincinnati, $50 million, and Three Rivers in Pittsburgh, $53 million.

The Louisiana Superdome is going to make them all as obsolete as Rome's Colosseum.

The Enemy Gap

By Russell Baker

men and generals who protect us here in the United States from our foreign enemies are having great difficulty these daye because nobody can agree who our foreign enemies are. This is because we are now undergoing another change of enemies such as we had in the late 1940s, when our old enemies Germany and Japan were suddenly declared friends our friends Russia and China just as suddenly became

Now that President Nixon is trying to make it up with Peking and Moscow, we're suddenly faced with the possibility of an enemy gan. This is intolerable because if there is no enemy, congressmen and generals will not have anybody to protect us from except ourselves, and most of us wouldn't wish that kind of protection on anybody who has to live in the same country with

The betting about who the new enemy will be centers on three countries-Japan, Canada and Denmark. Each country has its supporters in Washington, and a good case can be made for any of the three, although there is a good bit of personal prejudice ineide the White House against making Japan the enemy.

This flows from the President's close adviser, H. R. Haldeman, who is an ardent amateur photographer and does not want to be cut off from Japanese cameras.

The military also opposes Japan. The Joint Chiefs of Staff have sent the White House a position paper noting that the United States has already beaten Japan in one war, pointing out that it would be boring to have to fight the same country again and stating that they would like to try some place Dew.

Arguments for and against Canada are also spirited. There is a faction in the White House that is tired of hearing Canadians accuse the United States of Dever

WASHINGTON.—The congress- thinking about Canada. "They are perfectly right," one White House man conceded the other day. "Try as hard as I may, I can never seem to remember to think about Canada. If Canada were our most deadly enemy, however, we would think ebout it constantly. It would have nothing more to complain about, and U.S.-Canadian relations would be wonderfully improved. Opposition to Canada is led by Edgar Hoover. Canada's population, Mr. Hoover armes is so small that it would be unable, to support an espionage system big enough to keep the FBI's full resources employed. Many FBI agents would be put out of work. The American economy would suffer further setbacks in an already difficult period.

The case for Denmark is, in some ways, the most persuasive of all. For one thing, Washington is dietinctly irritated with Denmark. When the United States put a 10 percent surcharge on imports to keep foreign goods oot of America, Denmark responded by putting on a 10 percept surcharge of its own.

The Pentagon is divided on Denmark. The missile men favor it, because they like the professional challenge of having to hit Denmark with an Intercontinental ballistic missile without splashing any on Germany, Sweden or Nor-

The Army, on the other hand, is opposed. Having seen its soldiers demoralized by the vices of Saigon, it has no desire to expose American fighting men to Copenhagen's Dotorious por-nography dens and the Tivoli amusement park. Highly active among those working to establish Denmark as foreign enemy No. 1 are a number of distinguished old Senate Red-hunters, who have had few headlines since the juice went out of anti-Communist subversion investigations.

"When we consider the millions of American tourists who have tralpsed through Denmark and shamelessly enjoyed themselves," Sen. Merle Survine says, "we must realize that this country is probably swarming with people who are enft on Danes."

manusus Grooks and Supereggs manusus m

By Jan Sjöby

LONDON (IET).—Half-an-hour by train and bus from Paddington Station is the village of Stoke Poges, where Piet Hein has been living for a couple of years in a rustic house with his two sons, his grooks, his supereggs and his mathematical curves and formulas. He is working, at present, on a time machine.

Piet Hein, artist, essayist, internationalist, mathematician, philosopher, physicist and poet is a man who ought, by rights, to bs straddling fences. But there are no fences to straddle in the world of Piet Hein.

"I wrote an aphorism once," Mr. Hein recalls. "It went man is that animal who himself drawa the lines he himself stumbles over.' I don't normally write prose aphorisms but this one pressed for expression." Piet Hein, who has been called a "Danish Leonardo" and "the greatest Dane since Hans Christian," bas refused in all his 65 years to be tripped by traditional lines of distinction: Between arts and sciences, between the circle and the square, between physical formula and poetic aphorism, be-tween man, mouse and machine. Reality, he believes, is a unified whole, a continuum, and all categorizing must, of necessity, be arbitrary.

"We tend to divide man's world into specialist fields. They were devised for practical purposes but we bave had a lot of trouble with them afterwards, particularly as we don't seem to realize how heuristic they are, how unreal.

"Don't get me wrong," he hastens to add. "Categories and pigeonholes may be very practical. But they are only practical until they become impractical."

"There is a popular misconception," he says, "that the natural sciences are complicated. The truth is that we don't realize the immense complexity of the social sciences. I remember once asking Dr. Finstein bow be got around to formulate his theories of relativity. I don't understand complicated things,' said Einstein. I had to simplify Newton's universe so I could understand some of it myself."

As a etudent at the University of Copenhagen in the '20s-after art etudies at Stockholm's Royal Academy—young Hein split bis time between theoretical physics (under Niels Bohr) and philosophy. Academic graybeards wondered what would ever become of him-the two fields, at the time, were considered quite incompatible. Working with Dr. Bohr in the 30s. Mr. Hein became increasingly involved in pacifism and internationalism, isms somewhat less than healthy when the Nazi panzer rolled in on April 9, 1940. Piet Heln went underground and started writing 'grooks,' short aphoristic rhymes railing at the stu-drawings. "I planned to write perhaps half-a-dozen," explains Mr. Hein. "Had I known there would be some 7,000 of them to come, I

"The grooks weren't so much anti-Nazi as pro-buman," says Mr. Hein. "I've always pelieved that one is in a stronger position when fighting for something positive than against something negative."

After the war, the grooks spread like wildfire in Scandinavian media and on American college campuses. Now they are syndicated on both sides of the Atlantic.

"I wrote them in Danish to start with," says Mr. Hein. "A remarkable language with no consonants and only one vowel. I don't write so many grooks these days, but when I write I normally write in English."

In the mid-'60s, Stockholm city plenners had bulldozed away most of the downtown section of the city but were at a loss what to do with it. A huge central square was planned in the middle of the new civic center. A rectangle wouldn't work and neither would an ellipse. They turned to Piet Hein. "I figured the solution would lie in a curve somewhere between the second order and infinity. By luck, and perhaps intuition, I picked 25, and the super-ellipse was born. It was a wonderful experience watching it grow out of the computer. The shape had the same sense of unity and harmony as the extremes, the circle and the square." Mr. Hein believes in his super-ellipse and the world tends to agree. Droves of architects have studied the super-elliptical Sergel Square in Stockholm and similar structures have gone up in the New World-the Mexico City Olympic Stadium, for example, and the civic center in Peterborough, Ontario, Blocks of super-elliptical apartment houses are planned in the United States.

"The thing is," Mr. Hein explains, "that a super-elliptical building lets in the light from eight directions; the square and rectangular building from four. That can be shown, mathematically and empirically."

Having discovered the super-ellipse, Piet Hein set out to create a three-dimensional super-ellipse. He did and he named it the superegg. Its shape is harmonious, it is a pleasant thing to roll around in the hand or on a table top and it can stand on its end. But, for a long time, no practical use could be found for the thing.

"We've solved the practical end of it by now," reports Mr. Hein, "A Danish manu facturer found out that the supereggs could be filled with a certain liquid, frozen down and used instead of ice in a dry martini or a scotch on the rocks. The superegg keeps the drink cold twice as long as a cube or two of ice and it doesn't water down your drink. Personally, I can't stand whisky with water in it."

At present, Piet Hein is working on a tima machine, in cooperation with English, Swedish and Norwegian experts.

"It isn't an H.G. Wellsian sort of thing," says Mr. Hein. "It won't carry you back and forth in time, into the past or the future. But, as far as fairly primitive experiments indicate, it will slow down or speed up subjective time—time as we experience it, the only criterion for measuring time."

The machine is a chamber, permeated from ceiling to floor by electronic waves of the same frequency as those that carry brain impulses. Slight variations in the frequency would change the speed of the brain activities. Time would pass faster or slower, the individual in the machine would pep up or slow down.

"We have been most successful in the slowing-down phase," reports Mr. Hein. Then again, that's the most important thing. Our species, I believe, needs some slowing down "

Piet Hein B humanist's humanist, believes that machines may well be the next step of terrestrial evolution. He refuses to recognize a line between the human brain and the electronic brain.

"Not in our generation or the pext or the one after that, perhaps," he says, "but eventually electronic machines will be made that can be programmed to program themselves, to grow and reproduce. They may evolve into a higher species than Homo sapiens and we may turn out to have been merely a type of virus, helpful in that process. The day may come when the machines are more human than we are and thenlet them have the world. Our great-greatgrandchildren may well be machines."
"Personally," ha says, "I think it is less frightening to see machines turned into human beings than to see human beings turned into machines."
